FRIGHTFUL DISASTER IN A MINE IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

OVER 130 MEN BURIED WITH LIT-TLE HOPE OF RECOVERY.

SIXTEEN OF MINERS ESCAPED.

Everything Possible Being Done to Rescue the Entombed Men—News
From Coal Creek.

Fernie, B. C., May 23.—An explosion occurred at 7 o'clock last evening in No. 9 mine which is connected with No. 3 shaft and also with a high line shaft. One hundred and fifty men were in the mine at work at the time of the explosion. Of this number 16 escaped from the No. 3 shaft before the cave in. The opening is closed and there is little hope of rescuing the remainder of the men. Everything possible is being done today to relieve the situation.

LAST BODY

Believed to Have Been Taken From Coal Creek Mine—The Total is Now 212.

Coal Creek, Tenn., May 23.—One more body was recovered and some parts of a man, last night, which makes 212 recovered from the Frater-ville mine to date. Supt. G. M. Camp that the victims are now all out. A crew of men will make a complete canvas of the mines today to see if there are any more. A party will also bring out the dead mules. The citizens relief committee will canvas the families of the dead to ascertain their needs and will relieve them.

KIDNAPED

Thirteen Year Old Boy Who Said He is the Son of a Muncie, Ind., Man.

Indianapolis, May 23.—A thirteen year old boy was found sleeping under Virginia avenue viaduct this morning. He was taken to the police station where he told the story of having been kidnaped from Muncie, Ind., by three tramps who bound and gagged him and forced him to accompany them in a box car to this city. The boy is John Bodicut, son of John Bodicut. The story was today investigated and discovered to be true. The boy was sent home.

Died Together.

South Bend, Ind., May 23.—By mutual agreement John Churry, aged 31, last night sent two bullets through the heart of his sweetheart, Susannah Keckskemeti, aged 16, who would not marry him but who thought death together the solution. Churry then killed himself. The girl left a letter asking that they be buried together.

BULL FIGHTING

Doesn't Please the King Who Would Like to Substitute Horse Racing.
Currys Leave.

Madrid, May 23.—Dr. Curry and Mrs. Curry left Madrid last night for Paris, where Dr. Curry is to make a speech at the Rochambeau banquet on Saturday. Dr. Curry is delighted with the treatment he received throughout his stay here.

Mrs. Curry was so upset by the scenes she witnessed at the bull fight comment here. It is considered as a singular way for the French president to acknowledge the presentation to him of the Order of the Golden Fleece by the Spanish government.

setas to the free ducation fund. The gift was highly appreciated in official circles.

The King, speaking to a foreign diplomat, asked him how he liked the bull fight. The diplomat was obliged to confess that it was a disagreeable impression on him. "It is cruel," replied the King, "and I do not like it myself. I would like to introduce horse racing as a substitute."

DR. PARKHURST

Not Pleased With the Reform Administration He Helped Elect in New York.

New York, May 23.—Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst is not a bit pleased with the reform administration he helped to elect in New York. Before he sailed today on the Oceanic for Europe he said: "We have never had a police administration so absolutely nerveless as the one we have now. The chords of discipline are strung so loosely that when struck they give out no tone. Even under Tammany the members of the force knew what to do and did it." Relative to the Tammany triumvirate he said: "It is one of those cases where a single brain is better than a lot of ganglionic centres. "If a reform administration cannot govern the city, its effect, in a way, is worse than that of a Tammany administration for simple depravity is not so debasing as moral incompetency."

BURNED

AT THE STAKE THE PENALTY FOR HIS CRIME.

MORGAN WAS SLOWLY TORTURED TO DEATH.

BEGGED PITEOUSLY TO BE SHOT,

But Crowd Clamored for a Slow Death,
Negro's Victim Was Present.—
Man Confessed.

Longview, Texas, May 23.—Dud Morgan, colored, who assaulted Mrs. McKee at Lansing, and whose capture by a mob was detailed in yesterday's dispatches to the Advocate, was burned at the stake as predicted. Mrs. McKee told the men they had the right man, and the Negro was then escorted by about 200 men, armed with Winchester, to the place of execution.

As he was chained to the stake he made a statement, in which he implicated another negro named Franklin Heard, saying Heard was to get part of the money which was to be stolen.

Morgan confessed to having committed the crime, and after he had been securely chained to the stake, or rail, with its hands and legs free, the members of the mob began to take railroad ties from a fire already started and burn out his eyes.

They then held the redhot and burning timbers to his neck, and after burning his clothes off, to other parts of his body. The negro screamed in agony.

He was tortured in a slow and painful manner, with the crowd clamoring continuously for a slow death, and the negro, writhing and groaning, begged piteously to be shot.

Mrs. McKee was brought to the scene in a carriage, accompanied by four other women, and an effort was made to get the carriage close enough for her to see the negro. The crowd was so dense, however, that this was impossible.

Persons held each other on their shoulders, taking turn about looking at the awful sight.

The negro's head finally dropped and the ties were piled around and over him. In half an hour only the trunk of his body remained. As soon as the heat would permit, the crowd with long sticks began a grewsome search for relics. Parts of his skull and body were gathered up by some and carried away.

As the fire died down the crowd took the two men who first caught the negro and held them over their heads, while they held their Winchester in their hands and were photographed.

Section Foreman McKee, husband of the woman assaulted, had applied the match to the faggots. Many women were present from the surrounding country, but owing to the great crush they had very little opportunity to see the negro until the heat forced the crowd to widen the circle and the flames leaped over him.

The railroads brought crowds of people to Longview Junction, where they boarded the Texas and Pacific fast train, which does not ordinarily stop at Lansing.

The engineer was forced, at the point of a Winchester, to stop at the scene of the lynching, however, and the mob disembarked.

NOMINATED

After Over 1000 Ballots Had Been Taken—Fred Landis Defeats Steele
In Indiana.

Wabash, Ind., May 23.—Fred Landis of Logansport, a brother of Dr. J. T. Landis, of Cincinnati, was nominated for the Eleventh District Republicans for Congress here after the most exciting convention Indiana has ever known. The outcome was unexpected, and while the whole state was interested in the terrible fight that has been waged for months upon Major Steele, the victor of countless political conflicts, the people had been educated to look for a Steele victory when the final break should come. The nomination of Mr. Landis on the one thousand and twelfth ballot was therefore a surprise, though when the convention paused after the one thousand and eleventh ballot and Steele, Cogwill and Good got together it was known that it was now or never with the combination against Steele.

The Waterloo of Major Steele, who has represented this district for 16 years, came at 1:50 and resulted from Cogwill and Good throwing enough votes to Landis to secure his nomination, they believing that Steele would win in another ballot or two from merely tiring out the delegates. The balloting had started at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and lasted continuously, with a half hour's intermission on account of a terrible storm, until 2 a.m.

Circus Tents Collapse.

Ridgway, Pa., May 23.—During a severe rain and wind storm last night John Robinson's circus tents were blown down upon a large audience.

Immediately after the collapse of the tents the canvas caught fire from gasoline lights and while the struggling people were trying to get out of the trap in which they found themselves, fire, wind, rain and fright added to the prevailing confusion.

Nearly everybody in the tent was bruised more or less seriously. No body was killed.

RIOT

STARTED BY GIRLS EMPLOYED IN LIGAR FACTORY.

DEMANDED THAT MR. BROWN BE RESTORED TO HIS PLACE.

GIRLS SET UPON THE OFFICERS,

But Were Finally Induced to go to a
Hall, But Were Not Persuaded To Work.

Detroit, May 23.—Fourteen hundred girls, employes of the Brown Brothers branch of the American Cigar Company (trust), who struck yesterday on account of the resignation of Manager Brown, assembled at the factory this morning and indulged in a riot. Several of the officers of the company were set upon and threatened with violence.

"We won't go to work unless Brown is restored to his place," was the cry of the girls. They were induced to go to a hall where Brown and the new trust manager made pacific addresses, but did not induce them to go to work.

GIGANTE

Who May Recover Tells of the Plot to Escape From the Workhouse at Canton.

Canton, O., May 23.—The unexpected has happened in the cases of both Guard Stone who was seriously wounded by Charles Gigante, and the prisoner, who was shot by Stone and by himself. Both show such strength that physicians say they may recover.

Gigante continues to declare that he was only one of a number of prisoners in a plot to escape. They planned to get the revolvers of the guards, hold up the captain of the guard and make a wholesale release of the prisoners. He made an ante-mortem statement to State's Attorney Robert Day. This is the declaration under oath:

"Giles, Lewis, Gardiner and myself framed up the job. I was to hit Guard Stone with a bolt of wire at the first opportunity and Giles was to get the gun. Giles, however was fastened up in the cell department. Lewis was to stick up the new screw, meaning that he was to hold up Klotz. Wednesday morning Lewis said to me, 'Now is your chance.' I pulled the gun out of Klotz's pocket and shot at him to scare him. I then shot at Jacob and once at Stone. Stone shot at me first, before I shot at him. Giles knew all along I was to get the gun if I had an opportunity. We had planned to go north when we got out. The escape has been hatched ever since I have been here. Giles planned the whole thing. I killed Jacob and shot Stone in self-defense. I did not intend to hit Klotz when I fired my first shot."

Their cant' be much difference between righteous indignation and holy horror.

PEOPLE

LEAVING MARTINIQUE FAST AS POSSIBLE.

BEST PART OF THE ISLAND HAS BEEN DESTROYED.

VISIT IS MADE TO MONT PELEE

Further News From the Stricken Dis-
France Thursday.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, May 23.—A correspondent has had an interview with M. Clerc, a member of the legislature of Martinique who recently explored the vicinity of Mt. Pelee. He said:

"I started Friday last for Mt. Pelee by the road leading along the coast from Basse Pointe and, accompanied by Mr. Tellame Chancelle, chief engineer of the sugar works, I reached a height of 1,244 meters without difficulty and was able to ascertain that the present crater is about 300 meters in diameter. On the east it is overlooked by the Morne La Croix, the culminating point of the island, having an altitude of 1,350 meters, which is completely crumbled and mined at its base, as a result of the volcanic action, and might easily collapse. The Morne Petit Bon Hamme has an incandescent aspect.

"In order to make known our presence at the point where we stood I waved a piece of white cloth attached to a stick, in the air, which was replied to by a corresponding signal from an inhabitant of Morne Rouge, who signalled to me in this matter in order to show that he saw us. We felt a number of electric commotions and our shoes were damaged by the heat.

"The pond which was situated near Morne La Croix is completely dried up. The iron cross which stood at the foot of the mountain has been melted. Only the base of the masonry on which the cross stood, and the lower part of the foot of the cross can be seen.

"The rims of the crater have very much changed in appearance and the heat which we stood was intense and the whole aspect of the mountain was terrifying. Stones fell around us and we picked up large pieces of sulphur, which, however, we were unable to retain. The whole spot was charged with electricity which became so violent that we were obliged to retreat. Our descent from the mountain was more difficult than our ascent. A blinding rain of ashes fell upon us and the engineer was nearly killed by a large stone which fell near him.

"We succeeded in reaching Basse Pointe, on our return, after having been four hours on the mountain under most dangerous circumstances."

The recent rains of ashes and volcanic rocks, weighing as much as 75 grammes, which have fallen here, caused so much consternation among the inhabitants of Fort de France that those who have not left the city are anxious to do so, and large numbers are migrating to the island of Guadeloupe, where, it is now stated, there are 1,200 people from Martinique.

During her last exploring trip about the island the French cruiser Suchet, which did not stop at St. Pierre, noticed that all the formerly cultivated land between Grand Riviere and Margot has been completely destroyed. The inhabitants of those two towns have suffered and are still suffering a great deal but they have not yet determined to abandon their localities and efforts are being made to supply them with provisions.

The Suchet also reports that as she approached that part of the island where the land was in a better state of preservation especially between Ma couba and Lorraine a shower of stone and sulphur caused those of the population of Morne Rouge who had remained there to hastily evacuate that place.

For a time some apprehension was felt regarding the safety of the detachment of French troops quartered at Carbet but there has been no loss of life among them, according to the most recent reports. The French gunboat Joffray took on board about 150 of the inhabitants of the neighborhood of Le Carbet. It is estimated that about 3,000 persons yesterday left Fort de France for the extreme southern part of the island.

New Crater Opening.

Ft. de France, May 23.—Mt. Pelee has been in almost constant eruption since May 19. A new crater has opened on the north side of the volcano and from this the lava pours in a big stream down to the ocean. There has been further loss of life, and what is more distressing, a large number of persons, mostly women and children, are imprisoned by the lava streams which surround them. It is impossible for assistance to be rendered to them by human beings and nothing less than a miracle can save them from the awful death that confronts them.

These unfortunates are at Grande Riviere. They were cut off from escape when Mt. Pelee resumed its labors Monday. The lava that burst forth swept away all the roads, filled the river channels so that it set the bridges afloat carrying them upon its surface until they were consumed and reaching the sea coast spread through the crevasses a bubbling mass so hot to be almost incandescent. In this way have the women and children at Riviere been surrounded. Efforts have been made to reach them and, though they can be seen pleading for deliverance, it is impossible to give them aid.

Their supply of food is limited, if not wholly exhausted, and starvation if not a more terrible fate, confronts them. Gradually but steadily the rivers of lava are spreading, and if the eruption increases a wave of molten material will sweep away the doomed victims.

Unsin Vive has been destroyed, as has Le Carbet where 20 soldiers perished. Many inhabitants of the village are also believed to have been lost, but it is impossible to tell the number.

Paris, May 23.—A telegram dated Ft. de France was today received at the Colonial office from Mr. L'Heurre, acting governor of Martinique. The message which is dated yesterday, reads:

"No new deaths. The privy council of the colony consulted as to the advisability of a total or partial evacuation of the island had unanimously decided that such action is not justified for the present.

"A steamer of the Compaigne trans-Atlantique is here and is able to transport those desiring to go to Guadeloupe. Today 1000 inhabitants engaged passage aboard steamers Versailles and Villa Detanger going to Trinidad and Cayenne."

Ft. de France, May 23.—The demoralization among the natives has been intensified by the opinion of scientists who came here on the American relief ship Dixie that Mt. Pelee still threatened danger. The exodus from the island continues, more than 1,000 additional persons having secured passage on vessels that have touched here.

The French government officials are doing all in their power to assure the people but so far with but poor success. There is fear of an uprising among the people living south of Ft. de France. They are clamoring for transportation from the island.

Disease has appeared in the island. The authorities are hopeful that the danger of an epidemic is past.

MRS. M'KINLEY

Asked the President to Appoint Flattery at Wooster and the Request Was Granted.

New York, May 23.—A Washington dispatch to the Herald says:

President Roosevelt appointed to office yesterday the only man endorsed by Mrs. McKinley, the widow of the late President, when he sent to the Senate the nomination of Thomas B. Flattery to be postmaster of Wooster, Ohio.

Flattery was appointed four years ago by President McKinley, who made the selection out of deference to the personal wishes of his wife, Flattery being a blood relation of Dr. Phillips, her physician. Flattery did not have the endorsement of the politicians of the city. When his term was about to expire he realized that his chance for a second term was in danger. Flattery appealed to Mrs. McKinley and requested her to ask the President to re-appoint him. This the late President's widow did.

The weather man will soon be making it hot for the people who have been roasting him.

SEVEN

LITTLE CHILDREN DIED IN PIEX-OTTO'S HOUSE.

BURNED OR THREW BODIES INTO THE RIVER.

ARRESTED AT COLUMBUS, OHIO.

The Officers Have Made Some Startling Finds and Believe Others Will Develop.

Columbus, Ohio, May 23.—Startling disclosures have been made to the police by Mrs. Mary Evans, alias Piexotto, who was arrested at Midnight on Wednesday, and will have to answer to the charge of infanticide.

She told Detective Dorgan that she has officiated at seven cases recently as midwife, and that in every instance the child was born dead or died shortly after birth. When asked what she did with the children born at her house she replied that she usually threw them into the river or buried them. She announced that the former method was the most satisfactory. In the face of her admissions she declares that she is innocent of wrong doing. She says the only time an operation occurred in her house was last winter in the case of a colored servant. She burned it in the kitchen stove.

When the police made an examination of the premises at 202 W. Spruce street they found a newly dug grave in the coal shed. Mme. Piexotto said after the child of Louise Hiles died she put it in this hole so that the interest of the neighbors would not be aroused.

"I made a mistake," explained the woman, "by not pursuing the regular course, but I was so busy looking after the mother of the child and taking care of my patrons, I buried the child in the yard to preserve it till morning, when I intended to dispose of the remains properly."

The attention of Mrs. Piexotto was called to a statement from Dr. Lovell, at Zanesville, that he did not know her or Miss Hiles, and had never heard of them. She said she told the truth when she said Dr. Lovell sent Miss Hiles to her.

Miss Hiles was removed to a hospital last night. She told the police that Frank Crouse, a painter of Loveland, Ohio, who is now working in Cincinnati, was the father of her child. She says after she got into trouble she went to Zanesville and she tells of her dissolute life there as if it was a joke.

Mrs. Piexotto says her divorced husband and two sons are living at Toledo. She told the police that she practiced medicine for 14 years in Ada, Ohio, Detroit, Mich., San Francisco, and Urbana, Ohio, although she never attended medical school and had no diploma. Her husband was divorced from her seven years ago at Ada, Ohio. She became acquainted with Dr. Lovell, according to her statement, at the residence of Mrs. McCarthy, a fortune teller, living on East University street, this city.

The police have secured information that she has officiated in many cases under very suspicious circumstances, and a complete and searching investigation is being made. The woman's record in other cities is being looked into.

A musician cannot always borrow money on his notes.

MRS. SHAFER

Has Found Her Three Children One of Whom is Now With Her at Mentor.

Toledo, O., May 23.—Mrs. Mary Shaffer of Mentor, Ohio, will soon be reunited with her three children from whom she became separated 20 years ago, as told in yesterday's Advocate. She returned to Mentor on Wednesday night. Yesterday one of the sons who lives here, but who had been out of the city, read a newspaper article while on the train returning home, and he left for Mentor to see his mother. The other two children reside within 50 miles of Toledo and will speedily be presented to the mother who so longs to see them.

MAKE THE NAVY POPULAR.

There ought to be enough truly democratic spirit in the House of Representatives to insert in the naval appropriation bill a provision for the promotion to commissioned rank of a certain number of warrant officers. The provision should be mandatory.

No enlisted man has yet been advanced to a commission in the United States navy though in the navies of European monarchies the man before the mast may hope to become admiral of the fleet. The snobbish, un-American attitude of naval bureaucrats in the case of Gunner Morgan is typical of the situation. It is a situation that should be changed by the mandate of Congress.

Any American soldier is good enough to be a commissioned officer if he possesses the necessary technical qualifications. Any American sailor is qualified to a commission if he prove worthy of it.

"Social qualifications" do not win naval battles, nor does the Annapolis academy monopolize all knowledge of the art of warfare.

The fact that the British government has given orders to suspend its purchases of horses and mules in America strengthens the belief that the South African war will not be of much longer duration. Large purchases of horses made in Missouri last week have been ordered to be shipped to the British remount station in Lathrop, in that State, whence they will be prepared for shipment to some British possession. The Lathrop station will be closed. The dispatches received from British authority said the war in South Africa would close at an early date. And that appears to be the tenor of the news we get in a roundabout way from the Boers.

We are selling lots of "Clover Leaf" Flour in Newark, for the reason that the quality is exactly as we represent it to be. Strictly a High Patent, most economical and makes close texture white bread.

NATIONAL MILL CO.

Automatic Oven Shelf.

How an oven shelf can be drawn out of the oven merely by opening the door is shown in a patent issued to a Philadelphia inventor, says Scientific American. A bar is pivoted to the front of the shelf and has an angle and arranged to come into contact with the inner surface of the oven. A projection upon the bar is automatically engaged by a catch when the door of the oven. When the oven door is closed the shelf is pushed in and when the oven door is opened the shelf is pulled out. The projection on the bar and the catch are used when it is desired to open the door without moving the shelf.

Harmonious Decorations.

For summer occasions a simple scheme of rocks and trees in colors of pink, blue, white and green, and which can be painted easily on both sides, if it is first mounted. Take a piece of wood about three feet long and seven wide. Cut a piece of bark to fit this and paste it on the wood, putting a heavy weight upon it and dry then paint in oils a landscape with a row of trees in the foreground and distant hills, or a bit of shore with rocks and "breakers" and leave a margin of the bark like a mat around it, or a group of white birches is effectively painted against a bit of blue sky. A foreground of grass completes the composition.

"If happiness cannot be bought," says the cynical Bachelor, "why does the minister charge for marrying people?"

SPAIN'S NEW KING.

Personal Characteristics of Young Alfonso XIII.

A mother's love and devotion have given to Spain a King worthy of the throne, says the New York World. The new sovereign is a boy-king at sixteen—but he comes to his inheritance with a character matured far beyond his years. Called in his boyhood to greatness and responsibility, he accepts his heavy duties modestly and seriously, though not morbidly.

Born with inherited weakness of mind and body, exceeding frail, a wise and gentle woman has trained and guided him until he has become sturdy physically and has gained a most attractive character. He is a true monarch, to whom all loyal Spain looks with reverence and affection, is a fine, handsome boy. His mind is healthy and spirited. He is tender hearted and impulsive. He is charitable, energetic, friendly and has a will of his own. He is a born soldier and is a good one even now. He is deeply patriotic and religious. He speaks English, French and German as well as his own language. He is greatly devoted to his sisters, Princesses Mercedes and Maria Theresa. He is fond of athletics and swimming.

King Alfonso has such a string of imposing names that one is reminded of old Ecles' comment when he bears the long tale of his little grandson's aristocratic Christian names:

"He doesn't look big enough to hold them all."

If the king were to be introduced anywhere with all of his names, his sponsor would have to say:

"Allow me to present Alfonso XIII, Leon Ferdinand Maria James Isidore Pascal Antonio, king of Spain, of Castile, of Leon, of Aragon, of the two Sicilies, of Jerusalem, of Navarre, of Granada, of Toledo, of Valencia, of Galicia, of Majorca, of Minorca, of Seville, of Cordova, of Caceres, of Coruea, of Jaen, of Algarve, of Algezira, of Gibraltar, of the Canaries, of the East and West Indies, of India and the Oceanic continent, Archduke of Austria, Duke of Burgundy, of Brabant and of Milan, Count of Hapsburg, of Flanders, of Tyrol and of Barcelona and Lord of Disney and Molina."

The king has two Irish cobs, which have superseded the pony carriage and on which he is often seen in Madrid. His playfellows have been the children from the families of the Duc de Soto mayor and other grandes, and his principal diversion took the form of platoon exercises, the handling of arms and of drills. As his strength increased there were long walks with officers, and indoors he played billiards much and with considerable skill.

THE VOLCANO BELT.

Lines Around the Earth Where the Crust is Thinnest.

Man's habit of delving into the earth for both scientific and industrial reasons has made what may be called the internal mechanism of this old orb a matter of deep concern at all times, and volcanic fires, such as that in Martinique, tend to increase and intensify public interest in matters relating to the earth's interior, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. Forces which bring about these surface manifestations of internal disorder follow the law of least resistance. They break out where it is most convenient to do so. Scientists have been able to trace the line along which possible volcanic eruptions are arranged, and, while the line is somewhat erratic, it is definite enough, and the frequent disturbances within the range agreed upon have amply established the correctness of the conclusions reached.

The following from encyclopedic authorities with reference to the matter may not be without interest in view of the fearful disaster in Martinique: Volcanic action, according to the authorities, is limited to particular regions of the earth. In these regions the active vents are disturbed at intervals and are generally arranged in a linear direction. The Pacific ocean is bounded by an almost unbroken line of active volcanoes. Beginning in the New Sheelands, where there is an active volcano in latitude 62 degrees 35 minutes south, we pass the Tierra del Fuego and then on to the Andes, which are throughout their whole course volcanic, although the great centers of volcanic action are confined to Chile, Peru, the neighborhood of Quito, Guatemala and Mexico. The line is continued northward by the burning mountains of northwestern America, and the Aleutian islands carry the chain across to Kamchatka, on the Asiatic side. Here, turning southward, the line may be traced through the Kurile islands, Japan, Formosa, the Philippines, Moluccas, New Guinea and the Solomon and New Hebrides groups to New Zealand.

From Celebes a branch proceeds to a northwesterly direction through Java and Sumatra to Borneo island, in the bay of Bengal, and even beyond this we find a region in northern India subject to earthquakes, which may lead us to the one hand to the volcanic region of Tartary, or on the other through Asia Minor to the Greek peninsula, Sicily, Naples and on to the Canaries and Cape Verde. According to the geological theory the lines thus traced over the whole globe would represent rising lands where the crust is less strong and so less liable to repress the expansive power below.

A new car coupling is being tried on a Newark railway. It lessens the space between the cars to 7.5 inches.

HOME LIFE IN ST. PIERRE

Martinique Girl's Story of Her Former Home.

SOCIAL LINES RIGIDLY DRAWN.

Interesting Habits and Incidents of Life on the West Indian Island Recalled by a European Girl—Wealth of Fruit and Vegetables—Women Fine Embroiderers.

The eyes of a pretty Martinique girl were heavy with tears while she talked with a New York Tribune reporter the other day of her former home in St. Pierre and of her many friends who were there at the time of the disaster.

The young woman and her sisters, like most white girls at Martinique, received their education in Europe. The convent school, the girl explained, admitted all applicants, negro as well as white children, and as the social lines are rigidly drawn in Martinique white people in rare instances patronized the school. The speaker recalled many interesting habits and incidents of Martinique home life.

"We were never apprehensive of danger from the mountain," she said. "Indeed, we never even thought of it as a volcano. To us it was always 'the mountain,' on the side of which grew such luxuriant verdure as no one can realize until he has seen it. The lake in the crater was the favorite resort for the young men who bathed in it and camped around it. Women and girls seldom visited the crater because of the steep and difficult climb as one neared the summit.

"The drive from St. Pierre to our summer home at Morne Rouge was a delightful one. Along parts of the way big sugar cane plantations waved their silky arms in the breeze. At Trois Points, a village on the way, barfooted women wearing big hats, which they wove from palm leaves, were always to be seen washing their clothes in the river. The river bed was covered with huge boulders, which the washers use in place of washboards, standing in the river and slapping the garments on the stones with a vigor that would have insured destruction to the fabric had the process been applied by uninitiated hands. Out of the palm leaves the women also made kitchen fans, which served them in place of bellows to encourage their fires.

"The Jardin des Plantes was a beautiful place, but it was infested with snakes, as are the forests of the island. Visitors had to look out for them. There were beautiful ferns in Martinique, but I always noticed that where they were most luxuriant snakes were the most numerous. No one thinks of exploring the woods for flowers, as they do here, because of the serpents. Beautiful orchids and other lovely wild flowers grow in the forests. The orchids are usually found in inaccessible places, difficult even for the natives to reach. The country surrounding Trois Points is especially wild and picturesque.

"Among the attractive sights of St. Pierre was the early morning market, to which country women brought their produce in big wooden trays on their heads and from which women buyers took home their purchases in the same fashion. The wooden head tray was, too, the laundress' only vehicle when she called for and delivered her customers' wash. The women dressed in the most brilliant hues obtainable.

"At Fonds Core, outside of the city, it was a picturesque sight to see the fishermen bringing in their big nets in the early morning. A great variety of excellent fish was plentiful in Martinique, and it was sure to be fresh, for it could not be kept from one day to another on account of the climate. Ice was expensive, but was used by the white people. An ice-making plant was one of the enterprises of St. Pierre.

"People of Martinique are early risers. The colored population starts for market by 4 o'clock, and the white people are awake and ready for their first coffee by 6 o'clock. Many people drink cocoanut water, which is said to have the virtues of vichy, the first thing in the morning. The cocoanuts are procured by the little negroes, who climb the trees for the fruit and deliver it fresh to their patrons when the water is cool and sparkling. The jelly-like pulp of the young cocoanut is a great delicacy. The dry nut, in the condition it is received here, is grated and made into a delicious ice cream.

"Breakfast is, as a rule, served between 7 and 8 o'clock and usually consists of a cocoa or chocolate, with bread or biscuit and butter. The midday repast at noon is the hearty meal of the day, and there are always a fish course, a meat course, vegetables and a dessert of fruit in one form or another. A lighter meal is served at 7 p. m., at which there are always a meat soup, a vegetable or two and a dessert. Pastries in the shape of pies and puddings are little used. There is a wealth of fruit. Some of the vegetables common in the north, such as asparagus and artichokes, are much smaller when grown in Martinique, but others are larger. The cucumber, for instance, which attains a giant size in the islands, would hardly be recognized here. Concombers far exceed in size. Cucumbers are peeled, the seeds are removed and the cavities left are filled with sausages; then the cucumber is cooked in butter much in the fashion of a pot roast. It is sliced when served at the table. Cucumbers are also used for salads. Apricots are a different fruit from those common here. A story is told of a man in Martinique, a stranger to the country, who amazed his servant by sending for a half dozen apricots. He was surprised to receive six unfamiliar fruits, each about the size of a melon. A frequent method of serving the apricot is to slice it and serve it with wine and sugar. Liquors are made from the seeds of the sapote and from the vanilla bean. The chadock is much like the grape fruit, but bigger. There are two varieties; one with a white pulp is sour, and the other with a pink pulp is sweet. The skin is crystallized and used as a conserve. There are many sorts of oranges, figs and bananas. The latter are an important factor in the diet of the negroes.

"Palmiste is sure to be a favorite with foreigners. It is the pulp of the stem of a tree and is used with French dressing as a salad or is boiled and served with a white sauce.

"The avocado pear is rather a vegetable than a fruit. It has a marrowlike pulp, which is eaten uncooked with salt. Farine manioe is very much used. It is manufactured from the grated tubers of Manihot utilisima, which sometimes weigh forty pounds apiece. By submitting the grated product to great pressure a deleterious juice peculiar to the plant is removed. Breadfruit is common and is boiled and served whole or mashed. The Caribbeu cabbage, which does not resemble the northern cabbage, but which is more like a turnip, is very good. The natives are particularly fond of red pepper. A savory dish of vegetables and onions highly seasoned with it, is known as piment confit. Sweet potatoes and bananas are the favorite products of the negroes, who subsist chiefly on beans, salt codfish and breadfruit.

"There is little social life in Martinique, and unless there is a dancing party the population is pretty sure to be in bed between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening. Dancing is the principal pastime, and the young people can never get enough of it. The climate does not encourage games. We introduced tennis, but no one played it after we left. There are no teas and few dinners. A festivity or celebration occasionally takes the form of a very formal luncheon, which is in reality a heavy dinner and about which there is little gaiety.

"The women, both black and white, who have been educated in the convent do exquisite embroidery and lacework. The white women also make wax fruits and vegetables which are remarkable for their lifelike appearance. I have seen pineapples, apples of various sorts, sugar cane and the like which it was hard to recognize from the real. I have never seen anything to equal this waxwork in France, Germany, Holland or England.

"A profusion of roses, honeysuckles and other flowers grow about the houses. Few wild birds are seen, and none is heard."

WHO BUILDS THE STATE?

Richard Watson Gilder's Poem on National Constructors.

The annual meeting of the Society of the Colonial Wars of New Jersey was held at Princeton, N. J., recently. At the dinner given in the evening Richard Watson Gilder, editor of The Century Magazine, read the following poem:

Who builds the state? Not he whose power, Rooted in wrong, in gold entrenched, Makes him the regent of the hour; The eternal light cannot be quenched.

This shall outlive his little span, Shine hence upon each tainted scheme; Shall show where shame blots all the plan.

The treachery in the dazzling dream, He builds the state who builds on truth, Not he who, crushing toward his aim, Strikes conscience from the throne and ruth

To win a dark, unpeopled fame; Not he, though master among men— Empire and ages all his thought— Though like an eagle he has ken, Down to the ground shall all be brought.

For this I hold and shall for aye, Till heaven sends death—that they who sow Hate, and the blood of brothers, they Shall harvest hate and want and woe.

The curse of earth's dread agonies Wherever they added in their hour, And all the unheeded tears and cries They caused in lust of lawless power.

He builds the state who to that task Brings strong, clean hands and purpose pure; Who wears not virtue as a mask, He builds the state that shall endure—

The state wherein each loyal son Holds as a birthright from true sires Treasures of honor, nobly won, And freedom's never dying fires.

RAILROAD AFFAIRS.

The Act to Better Protect Lives of Railway Employees and the Public—Gorsuch Made a Trainmaster at Pittsburg—Local Railway Notes.

Gorsuch Made a Trainmaster.

This morning's Pittsburg Post says: Official circulars have been issued announcing the appointment of C. B. Gorsuch, trainmaster of the B. & O. at Pittsburg, vice F. S. Rogers, transferred. Mr. Gorsuch started in the service of the road 15 years ago as an operator at Baltimore, Md. He afterward served as train dispatcher there, and was transferred to the Pittsburg division about three years ago. The promotion of Mr. Gorsuch verifies the statement of General Superintendent L. G. Haas, when he came here, that the policy of the road would be not only to take care of the old men, but also to promote them whenever possible. This action will have a tendency to allay the fears of the old Baltimore & Ohio men that they would be dropped and other men substituted in their places.

All Newark railroad men will be interested in the new law passed May 10th, which appears below in full. The following certified copy was furnished by Secretary of State Laylin to Edw. L. Schnaidt, of this city:

AN ACT,

To amend an act passed May 2, 1902, entitled, "An act to better protect the lives of railway employees and the traveling public, and to repeal an act therein named."

Section 1. That it shall be unlawful for any railroad company in the State of Ohio, that runs more than four freight trains in every twenty-four hours, to run over their road, or any part thereof, outside of yard limits, any through freight train with less than a full train crew, consisting of five persons; one engineer, one fireman, one conductor and two brakemen except that a light engine without cars shall have the following crew: One engineer, one fireman and one conductor or flagman when running a distance of more than twenty-five miles from starting point.

Section 2. That any superintendent, or his assistants or other officer, or employee, of any railroad company doing business in the State of Ohio, who shall send out on the road, or cause to be sent out on any road, that runs more than four freight trains in twenty-four hours, any through freight train whose crew consists of less than those named in section one of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars for each offense, the probate courts of the several counties of this state shall have final jurisdiction of offenses under this act.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of the commissioners of railroads and telegraphs to enforce this act.

Section 4. That the act entitled "an act to better protect the lives of railway employees and the traveling public," as passed May 2, 1902, be and the same is hereby repealed.

Section 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

EXCITING CHASE

AFTER HORSE THIEVES WANTED IN NEWARK.

One Shot Took Effect as Blood Train Showed—Mr. Rehbeck at Loudonville.

It seems that the horse thieves who stole a horse and buggy from Mr. Louis Rehbeck of this city, a few days ago, are being closely pursued, and it is thought that their capture is assured. On Wednesday Marshal Vogelmeyer received a telegram from Loudonville, informing him that a rig answering to the description of the one stolen from Mr. Rehbeck, had been found near that place. Mr. Rehbeck left the same day for Loudonville, but nothing has been heard from him as yet. A dispatch from Wooster says:

"The police officers of this city had an exciting chase after horse thieves wanted at Newark, Ohio, Wednesday night. A message from Loudonville stated that the fellows were on an east-bound freight train. When the cars were stopped three men were seen to jump from a box car and run down a back street. The two larger ones ran for the land along the Killbuck bottom and, although many shots were fired after them they succeeded in getting away. The third ran towards the depot where he was seen and pursued for some time by Charles Oyler, a very small man, who was driving a delivery wagon. When Oyler, who was not armed, got along side of the fleeing stranger he pulled his pop from his pocket, pointed it at the fellow's head and commanded him to halt. The man threw up his hands and was brought to the police station by Oyler. He gave his name as Harry Betts of Homestead, Pa. One of the shots fired at the other must have taken effect as a trail of blood was discovered yesterday where the men were seen to cross the railroad track."

THE LATEST REPUBLIC

Trials and Tribulations of the Island of Cuba.

STORY OF ITS INVASION BY SPAIN

History of the Gem of the Antilles From its Discovery by Columbus to the Present Time—What Americans Have Done For the Good of the Island.

The island of Cuba, which has just started out under Uncle Sam's auspices as the youngest American republic, is associated with the very beginning of American history, says the Philadelphia Times. Cuba was the second island reached by Columbus on his first transatlantic voyage in 1492, and it was named Ferdinand in honor of its discoverer's royal patron. Not until after the death of Columbus, who died with the belief that it was a part of a great continent, was there an invasion of the island from the neighboring Spanish colony of Hispaniola, where it was believed that there were rich mines in Cuba. The natives offered little resistance to the armed force sent to subdue them, and Don Diego Velasquez was appointed governor in 1511. During his rule Velasquez founded many towns, introduced the systematic cultivation of sugar cane and firmly established the slavery of the aborigines, a system that was not abolished until 1538, when the efforts of Padre Las Casas secured the almost universal release of the natives.

From 1511 to 1607 the island was intermittently racked by violent dissensions among the Spanish officials and overrun by pirates of all nations. The most memorable event of this period was the departure from Havana of Hernando de Soto with a fleet brought from Spain to accomplish the conquest of Florida.

From 1607 to 1762 the island lay in a state of lethargy, but on June 6, 1762, an event occurred which awoke Spain to some realization of the worth of Cuba. A large English squadron, with 20,000 men, under the Duke of Albemarle, suddenly appeared off Havana and laid siege to the town, which was taken after stout resistance by the outnumbered and surprised garrison. From this time until July, 1763, the English held the north of Cuba, imported negro labor, shipped in much European merchandise and gave the first impetus which pushed Cuba from her old lethargy toward the development of her latent wealth. In 1763, by the treaty of Paris, which ended the seven years' war, Spain received back the English seizures in Cuba. By 1801 there was established a steady increase of population.

About this time there began a series of insurrections on the part of the native inhabitants, which showed their desire for greater privileges and freedom. In 1823 there was a society called "Sociedad," headed by one Lluvia. It made plans for an uprising which was never accomplished. In 1829 a revolutionary conspiracy of the "Black Eagles," involving many Mexicans, was discovered and crushed. In 1844 the insurrection of the blacks, who had the intention of killing all whites on the island, was remarkable for its completeness of plan. The rising in 1851 of Narciso Lopez, with 300 men, was a daring but short lived stroke for freedom, and it was not until 1898, when the ten years' war for independence, instigated by the outbreak of the revolution in Spain, began, that the cortes felt the full force of an expensive, draining struggle with a stubborn people fighting on from year to year. This revolt closed in 1878, when promises, such as representation in the Spanish cortes, which were never kept, were made by Spain.

In 1895 the Cubans, tired of the broken promises of their governors and their ministers in Spain, revolted again, as President Palma, the then insurgent representative, wrote to Washington, "for the same reasons as those which had forced them into their former struggle." The history of that war is fresh in the memory. The slow struggle, carried along on the guerrilla lines of past years, stretched on to the blowing up of the Maine in Havana harbor in 1898, the Spanish-American war, the final treaty of peace and the military governorship conducted by the United States just ended.

Since the evacuation of Cuba by Spain the administration of the island by American army officers has attained in a comparatively short time unusual results. The entire municipal government of the cities and towns held by the Americans for three years has been remodeled. Efficient police and harbor forces have been trained and established. Sanitation, which was formerly in a most primitive state, has been modernized, and economic conditions, which were desperate at the end of the war, have been relieved. Crime has been checked, the death rate has been reduced, employment on public works has aided the poor, and by the mustering out of the Cuban army agriculture has received an impetus which it had not had for a decade. The church and the state have been quietly severed, laws have been reformed to meet the exigencies of the present, the school system has been modernized and railroads have been put into working order.

A New Name For It.
The new French name for typewriting is dactylographic, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. It's quite a mouthful and might be considered a little irritating if attempted at 2 a. m. It is possible, too, that the pretty typewriter might not like to be called a dactylographic, but she could readily be shortened to "dackf dem."

A LAWYER'S EXPERIENCE.

The Story of a Convicted Man, a Pardon and a Pointer.

"A good many years ago," said a well known Michigan lawyer who was reminiscing the other day, "I became greatly interested in a state prison case. A young farmer was charged with having driven off ten out of a flock of twelve sheep and sold them to a butcher. He put up a fair defense, but was convicted and sentenced to a term of three years.

"There were plenty of people who believed that he was perfectly innocent, and even the butcher who bought the sheep came in time to doubt if he had identified the right party. After the case had stirred up a whole county I took a hand in it. In my petition to the governor I had the evidence of the young man's father, mother and sweetheart, and I got eight of the jurors to sign it. I made out such a good case that the governor took it under advisement and finally agreed to issue a pardon. In speaking to me of the case he said:

"There is no sort of doubt in my mind that this was a case of mistaken identity, and I shall be only too glad to restore the young man to liberty."

"It became my pleasant duty to drive seven miles over the muddy dirt roads to bear the news to the parents that a pardon was to be issued. The old man was under the weather and in bed in a room off the parlor. The wife received me and sobbed over the good news and then went in to break it to her husband. That partition wall was thin, and they both spoke in loud tones, and I plainly heard her say:

"Oh, Samuel, there's a man here who says our John is to be pardoned tomorrow!"

"You don't say?" he exclaimed.

"Yes; it's certainly so."

"Going to be pardoned right out, eh?"

"Yes; he is."

"Waal, waal, that's good news. Say, Mary, what a fool John was not to get the other two sheep while he was about it."

"I left the rejoicing farmhouse, intending to wire the governor to withhold the pardon," said the lawyer, "but it presently struck me that I had advanced about twenty good reasons why the young man couldn't be guilty, and I therefore decided to sing small and let things go on. He was duly pardoned and sent home, and the governor never met me for years after without congratulating me on rehabilitating an innocent man wrongly convicted!"—Detroit Free Press.

COOKING HINTS.

For a change try boiling apples in sweet cider. When apples begin to get tasteless, this makes a change.

Cocoa loses that raw taste if it is allowed to simmer for a good five minutes after being added to the boiling milk.

A cut potato dropped in the fat in which vegetables are to be fried will indicate the proper temperature by turning brown.

Have charcoal fires for broiling if you wish for perfect cookery. The hot flames close the pores quickly, and the result is very tender meat.

For preparing soup for invalids make a great point of delicate flavorings. Avoid much turnip or carrot, and instead have a suspicion of bay leaf, sweet herbs and mace.

When roasting a chicken in the oven, roast it in the usual way until it is nicely browned, then turn it back up and let it remain so until cooked. It will be found that the juice of the chicken runs into the breast and makes it moist and delicious.

She Played the Trump Card.
"How did she get here?" At a famous dancing assembly this was the quite audible comment made by several married belles when a beautiful young matron as yet on the outskirts of the exclusive set entered the room. The newcomer, whose first appearance it was, proved herself quite equal to the occasion. She had a nodding acquaintance with nearly every woman in the room. Some of them even went to her luncheon parties. Calmly turning to the most supercilious critic in the room, she echoed as though in reply:

"How did I get here? I drove here, my dear Mrs. Crossbeam. Did you walk?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

"Shure, an' it's quite thrue," answered Pat. "O've noticed it meself. When a mon has leg shorter than the other, begorra the other's longer."—Philadelphia Times.

"Miss D. doesn't have a single foreign label on her trunks and bags, not a sign that she ever has had them out of the country," said the girl who at the end of a six weeks' trip abroad surveyed her plastered over luggage with pride and admiration.

"Ah, well, you see Miss D. doesn't need to," replied the unkind man. "She goes across so often, and every one knows it."—New York Press.

BIG MEETING

OF NEWARK ODD FELLOWS AND REBEKAHS.

Visitors Present From Zanesville, Etina and Other Places—Admirable Degree Work.

One of the largest attended meetings of Licking Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, of this city, ever held here, was held on Thursday evening. On this occasion the hall was crowded with Odd Fellows and Rebekahs there being a large number in attendance from surrounding lodges. Elizabeth Lodge No. 26 of Zanesville was represented by over 50 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, while Etina lodge sent down nearly 50 members of the lodge at that place. There were over 200 members of the order in attendance at the meeting, and to say that the event was a success in every particular and was thoroughly enjoyed by every member of the order, is but putting it mildly. The number of visitors was a pleasant surprise to Licking lodge as not nearly as many were expected, but the home was equal to the requirements, and everyone present was made to feel at home. Among the prominent members of the order who were present were vice president of the State Assembly, Miss Ritchie, of Columbus, Past Master Bell of Zanesville; Rev. Mr. Crayton of Zanesville, and others.

The principal event of the evening was the conferring of the degree by the splendid team of Licking lodge, the work of which was exemplified in a manner that was a surprise to the visitors and too much cannot be said of the work. The crowded condition of the room made it hard work for the staff to give the work complete, but they managed to do it to the complete satisfaction of all present.

At the conclusion of the work, refreshments were served and remarks pertaining to the fraternity were made by Miss Ritchie, Vice President of the State Assembly of Columbus; Past Master Bell of Zanesville; Rev. Mr. Crayton of Zanesville and others.

The meeting throughout was a grand success and will long be remembered by those who were present.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Time on the Farm.

A farmer's success depends to a large extent upon economy of time. One who loses all the time when it is too wet to use the plow or hoe is too heavily handicapped to ever succeed, for he has lost more than 100 days in the year, or nearly one-third of his time, for he not only loses the rainy days, but all the days following until the soil is in workable condition. Instead of this he should lay up work "for a rainy day," so that when he can't work in the field he can work in the shop or elsewhere. There is never a time, or should not be, when there is no work to be done that day by done under cover. Every farm should have a shop for work in wood, iron and leather, and tools for each. If there is no indoor work urgent, invent new work. Conveniences previously well done may be made better and more convenient. Many farmers idle away bad weather, when if they had plenty of money they would keep some person handy with tools busy all the while entirely without loss of time from out of door farmwork.—Farm and Ranch.

Frozen Good Things.
One can make such a variety of frozen good things at home with comparatively little effort, and they are so much better and cheaper than those that are bought, that nowadays a kitchen is scarcely considered complete that does not number a freezer among its possessions. But if the family is small do not make the great mistake of purchasing a large size in anticipation of "company days." Better by far have two, the smaller one for general use, the larger one for occasions, and you will soon find it will pay in the difference of the time required and the amount of ice consumed in the making.

The reformer doesn't always think it necessary to practice on himself. Lots of fellows who are looking for situations would be satisfied with jobs. You can reach a man's heart through his stomach and a woman's through her clothes.

SUMMER NOVELTIES.

Coats and Skirts of Lace—The New Sleeve—A Fashionable Veil.

Sack coats and skirts made of heavy white lace are among the summer novelties.

Many of the new sleeves are immensely big between the elbow and wrist. This pouch is nearly always of some thin material—mousseline over mousseline of another color, lace, etc. The upper part of the sleeve is in the form of a close fitting cap.

Smart negligees are made of three accordion plaited flounces of white nun's veiling. The hems are cut into deep points and edged with narrow chiffon embroidery.

The fashionable veil of the present has a white mesh lightly plaided with black and is decorated with velvet dots.

WHITE MUSLIN GOWN.

which are white on one side and black on the other, so that when turned the veil presents quite a different appearance.

A smart muslin evening gown is shown in the picture. The material is sheer white, and it is figured with a little black dot. The waist has a fichu of plain white organdie, which fastens in front with a big rosette. This fichu is edged with fine black lace, and black lace figures also appear appliqued on the blouse part of the waist. The sleeves are mere pretenses, consisting of laticework made of white ribbon. The belt is of narrow white ribbon. The skirt has a full flounce of the white muslin banded with straps of white ribbon. The overskirt has in regular applications of black lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

CHANGES IN FASHION.

Plain Coats Are No Longer as Smart as Formerly.

The Eton, the bolero and the Russian coat appear to be a long way ahead of all other coats for general wear, although some dressy sack models are being shown, and the Louis coat has its votaries. The plain coat, however, has had its day, and fashionable women pass it by. The large, loose fitting coats are accepted for carriage and evening wear, but capes are almost entirely ignored except by those who require elderly fashions.

The blouse is still in request, though it is by no means as universal as formerly, but bodices are still made blouse fashion.

There is undoubtedly a tendency to return to plain skirts this spring. Many, however, which cannot be termed plain have still the long, unbroken line from waist to hem. Tiny tucks run in horizontal groups and are alternated with lines of baby velvet, braid or lace, and this is a popular fashion for voile.

NET BLOUSE.

The pretty summer blouse in the illustration is made of net, with a yoke and insertion of guipure lace. The fullness below the waist is held in fine tucks. The cleerees have an insertion running through their centers and a cluster of fine tucks. The waist buttons down the back with tiny silk buttons.

Pingpong has created a new disease, according to a cable dispatch from London to the New York World. It is called tenosynovitis and consists in the swelling of the sheaths of the tendons connected with the muscles around the shin.

Inflammation is caused by the wearing of ordinary stiff laced boots when playing the game, which demands sudden alterations of position, the weight being thrown mainly on the ankles. Rest effects a cure, but simultaneously with the discovery of the disease comes an advertisement of a patent pingpong shoe.

Prices of admission to park and theatre same as usual.

The hotel and restaurant will again be conducted on temperance principles. Other features of interest and amusement will be given on opening day and continue during the season. Idlewild park will continue to be the popular resort of our rapidly growing city. It will be clean, ably and well managed. No person of doubtful character will be allowed to enter the park. No intoxicating liquors will be sold or allowed on the park grounds.

MARTINIQUE DISASTER

Weird Experiences of the Steamship Horace.

CLOUDS OF SAND MET AT SEA.

Decks Covered With Volcanic Dust and Lights Had to Be Lit—Strange Phenomena at Night—St. Lucia Islanders Regard St. Pierre Horror as a Judgment of God.

Weird and interesting were the experiences of the crew of the British steamship Horace of the Lamport & Holt line, which reached New York from St. Lucia the other morning, says the New York Herald. The Horace is commanded by Captain Byrnes.

She touched at Barbados and had a decidedly interesting time in the vicinity of Martinique on Friday, May 9, when, despite the fact that she was 125 miles from Mont Pelee, the ship's decks were covered with lava dust to the depth of several inches. It was only through what seemed providential accident that the steamer's engines were saved from disastrous injury as a result of the storm of lava dust which covered them. The Horace brings the information that the visitation of St. Pierre is looked upon by the superstitious islanders as a judgment of God.

"While in St. Lucia," said an officer of the vessel, "I heard several of the residents telling one another that they believed the destruction of St. Pierre was a terrible punishment sent by the Almighty on account of the wickedness of the city. I don't know about the divine retribution, but I do know that St. Pierre was a pretty bad place."

"We had cleared from Barbados," said Second Engineer Anderson, "and were making our way to St. Lucia, where we were to complete our cargo, take on a little more coal and then clear for New York."

"On the afternoon of May 8 (Thursday) we noticed a peculiar haze in the direction of Martinique. The air seemed heavy and oppressive. The weather conditions were not at all unlike those which precede the great West Indian hurricanes; but, knowing it was not the season of the year for them, we were not alarmed. The engine room, however, was not so sure. The engine room men there must be a heavy storm approaching."

"So unusually peculiar were the weather conditions that we talked of nothing else during the evening. That night in the direction of Martinique there was a very black sky, an unusual thing at this season of the year, and a storm was apparently brewing in a direction from which storms do not come at this season. As the night wore on those on watch noticed what appeared to be great flashes of lightning in the direction of Martinique. It seemed as though the ordinary conditions were reversed, and even the forecasters' prophecies were unable to offer explanations."

"Occasionally over the pounding of the engines and the rush of water we thought we could hear long, deep roars not unlike the ending of a deep peal of thunder. Several times we heard the rumble or roar, but at the time we were not certain as to exactly what it was or even whether we really heard it."

"There would suddenly come great flashes of light from the dark bank toward Martinique. Some of them seemed to spread over a great area, while others seemed to spout skyward, funnel shaped. All night this continued, and it was not until day came that the flashes disappeared. The dark bank that covered the horizon toward Martinique, however, did not fade away with the breaking of day, and at 8 in the morning of the 9th (Friday) the whole section of the sky in that direction seemed dark and troubled."

"About 9 o'clock Friday morning I was sitting on one of the hatches aft with some of the other engineers and officers of the ship, discussing the peculiar weather phenomena. I noticed a sort of grit that got into my mouth from the end of the cigar I was smoking."

"Then I noticed that grit was getting on my clothes, and finally some one suggested that we go forward to the funnels, so we went out to get the dirt on us. As we went forward we met one or two of the sailors from the forecastle who wanted to know about the dust that was falling on the ship. Then we found that the grayish looking ash was sifting all over the ship, both forward and aft."

"Every moment the ashes rained down all over the ship and at the same time grew thicker. A few moments later the lookout called down that we were running into a fog bank dead ahead. Fog banks in that section are unheard of at 9 o'clock in the morning at this season, and we were more than a hundred miles from land, and what could fog and sand be doing there?"

"Before we knew it we were in the fog, which proved to be a big dense bank of the same sand, and it rained down on us from every side. Ventilators were quickly brought to their places, and later even the hatches were battened down. At first we thought that the sand must have been blown from shore. Then we decided that if the captain's figures were right we wouldn't be near enough to shore to have sand blow on us, and as we had just cleared Barbados we knew that the captain's figures had to be right. Just as the storm of sand was at its height Fourth Engineer Wild was nearly suffocated by it, but was easily revived. Just about this time it became so dark we found it necessary to start up the electric lights, and it was not until after we got clear from the fog that we turned the current off. In the meantime they had burned for 9 o'clock in the morning until after 2 in the afternoon.

"Then there was another anxious moment shortly after 9 o'clock. Third Engineer Rennie had been running the donkey engine when suddenly it choked, and when he finally got it clear from the sand or ashes he found the valves were all cut out, and then it was we discovered that it was not sand, but some sort of a composition that seemed to cut steel like emery."

"Then came the danger that it would get into the valves of the engine and cut them out, and for several moments all hands scurried about and helped make the engine room tight, and even then the ash drifted in and kept all the engine room floor wiping the engines clear of it. Toward 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Friday we were practically clear of the sand, but at 11 o'clock that night we ran into a second bank of it, though not so bad as the first."

"That night there were more of the same electric phenomena toward Martinique, but it was not until we got into St. Lucia, where we saw the Roddam, that we learned of the terrible disaster at St. Pierre, and then we knew that our sand was lava dust."

"The volcanic ash which fell on the decks of the Horace was ground as fine as rifle powder and was much finer than that which covered the decks of the Etona, which reached port a few hours before."

ST. PIERRE AND POMPEII.

Comparison of the Two Disasters by Edgar Saltus.

St. Pierre has been generally compared to Pompeii. The comparison is imaginative, but not exact, says Edgar Saltus in the New York Journal. In St. Pierre destruction has been pluvian. In Pompeii it was relatively slight. Pompeii was a town of about 12,000 inhabitants. Of these all save a few hundred escaped. The latter were asphyxiated.

There had occurred a hail of little stones. Then ensued a rain of ashes. It was that which suffocated those who remained. Thirty years ago the same sort of thing happened at Naples, but with this difference—for protection umbrellas sufficed.

A comparison between St. Pierre and Pompeii is not therefore admissible. Lisbon perhaps would be more to the point. The catastrophe which occurred there was due, however, not to an eruption, but to an earthquake. It may be worth noting that in modern Greek earthquakes and eruptions are synonymous. They are called theomienia, literally God's anger, a term probably suggested by Psalm cix, 32: "He looketh on the earth and it trembleth. He toucheth the hills and they smoke."

Statisticians estimate that through theomienia 14,000,000 people have lost their lives. To these must now be added those that have perished in Martinique. Yet, though the loss there is prodigious, it is less than that which Lisbon knew.

When the capital of Portugal fell, Europe shook. The Alps tottered. The Pyrenees quivered as leaves do in a storm. The convulsion was felt in Africa. Near Morocco an entire city disappeared. The earth opened. Then it closed. The city had gone. The vibrations of the earthquake extended to Finland. They reached Canada. They affected even the Antilles. Meanwhile at Lisbon in just six minutes 60,000 people died.

The catastrophe in the Caribbean is therefore more comparable to that than to the accident at Pompeii. Investigations have shown that in Pompeii there was no lava, no fire, none of the horrors which the southern sea has seen, but as investigations have also shown there have been mistakes.

The sentinel, for instance, who perished nobly, a martyr to duty at his post, has turned out to be a footpad. Through an error of antiquarians the honors due to a hero have been usurped by a thief. It is comforting to conclude that in honors as in horrors it is human to err.

Popularity of Our Kid Leather.

American kid leathers are growing in favor abroad, especially in Australia. Recently one of the largest morocco manufacturers in Lynn, Mass., made a shipment to that country of 3,500 dozen skins, which shipment is said to be the largest ever made from there for foreign parts. It is not so very long ago when the best kid shoes were made from skins imported from France. Now France is buying large quantities of kid from this country.

The Yankee Morganeers.

[Air: "The British Grenadiers."] Some talk of Alexander and some of Hercules. Of Bonaparte and Caesar and conquerors like these. But none of these great forces in any way compares With a tow, row, row, row, row, with the Yankee Morganeers. They fought with swords and muskets, these dodderers of old; They could not know, as we do, the only weapon's gold; Our wealth exceeds all counting; 'tis far beyond De Beers, With a tow, row, row, row, row, row, for the Yankee Morganeers.

Where Nelson drew his cutlass our Pierpont draws a check. His little glass walled office his only quarter deck. He rattles trusts and corners about the foeman's ears. With a tow, row, row, row, row, row, for the Yankee Morganeers. Whenever we're commanded to wipe a Briton off We sit a Wall street cocktail and talk a little golf. And as we sit and gossip his ruin straight appears, With a tow, row, row, row, row, row, for the Yankee Morganeers.

And when our work is over and England's wholly ours And stars and stripes float gayly from all her masts and towers We'll sip our morning cocktail within the house of peers, With a tow, row, row, row, row, row, for the Yankee Morganeers. —From "Books of Today" For May.

SUPREME COURT

MAY "READ" A FEW LINES INTO THE ROYER LAW

And Retain Its Jurisdiction Which That Act Destroyed—That Will Probably be Done.

Columbus, O., May 23.—The publication of the story that Royer's Senate bill curtails the authority of the Supreme court has created a sensation throughout the state. Local attorneys were deluged with telegrams from outside lawyers, who sought information.

It appears that the Supreme court was aware on Monday of the mischief the Royer bill does. Justice Shauk says:

"Some one brought us the information that the Royer bill had passed, and some one said it had failed to pass. Of course we knew in a general way what the bill proposed to do, and naturally we wanted to know whether our jurisdiction had been widened or not, so we sent our messenger down to the office of the Secretary of State to see about it and get a copy of the law if it had become a law."

"He brought a copy of the law, and Acting Chief Justice Burkett read it over. I don't think any other member of the Court read it then. It was just about noon, and we dropped the matter and the Judges went to lunch. While at lunch Judge Burkett's mind kept running over the construction of the law, and suddenly he saw as he remembered it that it enormously reduced the Court's jurisdiction. On coming back to the consultation room he told us about it, and together we went over the law carefully. Then we began to walk the floor and we have been worried about the matter ever since. It is very serious."

In view of the fact that the law will work a hardship upon the litigants of the state, it is possible that the Supreme Court will "read" the missing lines into the statute. The Ohio Supreme Court has been known to take the bull by the horns in this way.

In 1896 the Court had a similar question to contend with. The Legislature had been changing the bill of exception laws until no sense could be made of them. In one instance the law provided that bills of exceptions must be filed within 50 days after a decision of the Court where a motion for new trial was not necessary. In the Hamilton county case of the Cincinnati Street Railway company against Wright, administrator, Supreme Court "read" some things that were not in the law and nullified the act of the Legislature.

The same thing can be done in this instance, and it is expected that is just what the Court will do.

He Chose to Be the Littlest.

One day mamma told Milton that he was older than the baby and must let the baby have his toys if he wanted them because the baby was the littlest. Milton was very good and went in search of other amusements all day.

The next morning we heard a cry from the children, and, going to find the cause, Milton was found endeavoring to collect all the toys in the room and at the same time keep the baby away from them. Upon inquiring the trouble, Milton said:

"I let him have my toys and be the littlest yesterday, and now I'm going to be littlest today."

With this $3 he bought a pig, kept her for some time and sold her for $4. He worked on holidays and Saturdays and saved $4, which, added to the $11, gave him enough to buy a Jersey heifer. In a year he sold her and a calf for $40. He then bought a four-months-old colt for $5 and sold her later for $15. He now has $55, loaned at 10 per cent interest.

ON THE DIXIE

IS LIEUT. HENDERSON, FORMER NEWARK BOY.

Daughter of Dr. Harriet Henderson Who is Practicing Medicine Now in Columbus, Ohio.

Lieutenant Robert Henderson, whose mother, Dr. Harriet Henderson, formerly of Newark, but who now lives in Columbus at Oak street and Monroe avenue, is one of the officers on board the Dixie on the relief expedition to Martinique. He is well known here, having been a student in the common schools of this city. Later he attended the Ohio State university prior to entering the naval academy.

Lieutenant Henderson had been in the United States only a few weeks when the orders to sail to Martinique were received, having arrived here April 30, from the West Indies to which island his vessel has sailed from Asia after a cruise through the Mediterranean.

Lieutenant Henderson married the daughter of P. J. Cronin, a retired capitalist of New York, about two years ago. His wife is a beautiful and accomplished woman. During the Spanish war Lieutenant Henderson in addition to his regular duties as Captain Philips' private secretary on board the Texas, had written interesting accounts of his war experiences that have been published in leading periodicals.

In a recent letter describing the preparations prior to sailing for Martinique, he writes, "In addition to the officers and crew we had on board about 250 men, a party of eight scientific professors, four army officers and six photographers, who were huddled together on deck, not knowing which way to turn. The men of the United States steamer Dixie are boys, most of whom have been granted ten days' leave of absence, but owing to the orders sent to go to the relief of the stricken ones in Martinique, about sixty men were obliged to stay and help get stores and coal into the ship, and they certainly deserve great praise for their work. On account of the work many have been delayed in their leave of absence and only a few have been ashore, but most of the men are glad to make the trip and help the Dixie make a name. So hurrah for the Dixie and the crew."

GALLANT DE ROCHAMBEAU.

Facts About the Frenchman Whose Statue Will Soon Be Unveiled.

The Count de Rochambeau, whose statue, presented to us by the French people, will be unveiled with great ceremony at Washington on May 24, was one of those gallant Frenchmen who fought, as it were, by instinct. He entered the French army when only sixteen years of age and at twenty was appointed aide to the Duke of Orleans. When after a distinguished military career he came to America as lieutenant general of a force sent to fight with Washington against the British, he had reached the ripe age of fifty-five.

He fought gallantly at Yorktown and was presented, says Harper's Encyclopedia of United States History, with one of the captured cannons. He was decorated on his return home, and a few years later he became a marshal of France. When the Jacobins ruled Paris, De Rochambeau barely escaped being guillotined. In 1804 he was pensioned by Bonaparte and received from him the cross of grand officer of the Legion of Honor. His memoirs were published in Paris in 1809.

CONVENTION

PROMISES TO BE INTERESTING TOMORROW.

Anti-Ickes Men Claim They Will Run Whole Thing, But Let's Wait and See.

The Republican convention tomorrow promises to be anything but a ratification of the appointment of J. M. Ickes to the Newark postoffice. In fact the fight that was made on Ickes Tuesday night, will be carried onto the floor of the convention and those opposed to him claim that they will control the convention, name state delegates and organize the Central committee.

John A. Culicote, who was Mr. Ickes' most formidable rival for the postoffice, was seen this morning, and asked to give a forecast of what the convention would accomplish. Mr. Culicote greeted the news man with his well known genial smile, which has gained for him hosts of friends, and said:

"We are going to beat Ickes to a standstill tomorrow in the convention, and in the selection of delegates. We have already secured a good working majority of the Central committee."

"But what is the use? Can the fight on Mr. Ickes accomplish anything now? He has the postoffice, and will regularly draw the very desirable salary, so what's the use?"

"My dear boy, you have a lot to learn," replied J. A. C. "We will by the result of tomorrow's convention serve notice on Senator Hanna and others that the appointment of Mr. Ickes was the most unpopular that could have been made. We will show how discredited he stands with the party which has honored him, but which he has disrupted in the town and county, by his unpopular methods. There may be some of us who will want something in the future and we want to get the goods for ready delivery, when the call is made."

"Furthermore we will select an executive committee the complexion of which will be so pronounced that every farmer in Licking county will know as he reads their names in his Weekly Advocate or American-Tribune that although Mr. Ickes has the plum, the plucking has been at the expense of his popularity and patronage."

SCORNE BY MORGAN.

American Financier Refused to Be Interviewed by French Journalist.

J. Pierpont Morgan has proved too much for the French and English in interviewers, says the Paris correspondent of the New York World. His rude dismissal of any newspaper man who succeeds in gaining access to him has been editorially commented upon recently in six different Paris newspapers, and the Paris correspondents of the English newspapers now ignore all assignments to see the Yankee terror.

The Figaro tried to compel Morgan to talk, especially engaging Jules Lemaitre, a member of the academy and one of the foremost literary and political personalities of France, to see him, evidently calculating that Morgan would not dare to turn down such a celebrity.

Under the title "What Money Cannot Buy" M. Lemaitre describes the encounter, incidentally making a most unflattering portrayal of Mr. Morgan's appearance and manners. M. Lemaitre says the talk lasted thirty seconds. A Paris banker who was acquainted with Mr. Morgan introduced him.

"This is M. Lemaitre," he said. "You must have heard of him, as everybody has."

"Well, I've not," granted Mr. Morgan. "He would like to talk with you on behalf of the Figaro," said the Parisian banker.

"I've nothing to say," granted Mr. Morgan.

"But," pursued the banker, "the Figaro is the greatest paper in Europe."

"I don't care if it is the greatest in the world," said Mr. Morgan; "I have nothing to say."

"M. Lemaitre is one of the forty immortals," pleaded the banker.

"What's that to me?" queried Mr. Morgan. "I've nothing to say. Good morning." Whereupon he turned upon his heel and left the room, leaving them both standing agape.

Foulard General Utility Gown. Beige and Ecru Laces.

Some smart Paris gowns are made of silk lined with white and huge chenille spots or woven linen spots. Scarlet or green with spots in white is most effective.

Foulards in dark shades spotted in white make charming shirt waist costumes with unlined blouses and skirts. They are trim and most useful for ordinary occasions. The only trimming consists in a few clusters of tucks. Beige and ecru laces are now so much the fashion that white laces hardly have any sale at all except for under wear. Beige net ornamented with big spots is considered ultra smart this year.

The new voiles are of very fine make and artistic coloring. They closely resemble silk canvas and are much nicer than the very fabrics of old.

The carriage wrap shown is of pale gray peau de sole lined with gray silk. The wide sleeves have filled under sleeves of net, and the wide collar is trimmed with bands of black velvet. There is a soft jabot with long ends of ecru lace.

WASH DRESSES.

Irish Crochet Collars Are Seen on Many of the Prettiest Models.

With cotton, zephyr and pique suits the chief feature is the collar. This must be of the coarsest lace. Do not imagine, however, that this means a common lace, but one of the thick new makes in vogue at the present hour and resembling as near as possible Irish crochet. Some of the applique lace collars look charming with edgings of black velvet or colored silk worn on an all white dress.

Linen suits this year will mostly boast of short coats instead of the blouse bodices of which we wore so many last year, added to which instead of the black gray and neutral shades of last season there will be a perfect craze for the reddest of scarlets and brightest of pinks. In fact, brightness of color is the key to the summer modes.

One of the favorite combinations and one which looks very well in wash materials is pale blue and pale yellow.

The cut shows a boating costume made of drill or canvas. The collar is cream white, trimmed with bands of red taffeta. The loose Eton jacket has revers and is bordered with the taffeta. The crush belt is of the material. The scarf around the neck and the undersleeves are of white mull. The hat is of white straw trimmed with rosettes of red silk.

MORGAN'S VAST DREAM

A Transportation Trust to Control the World.

NEW YORK THE HEADQUARTERS.

Details of the Most Powerful Industrial Combination in the World's History—Controlled by Seven Men and Practically Operated by One, J. Pierpont Morgan.

A worldwide transportation trust! Such was the dream of J. Pierpont Morgan, the "Father of Trusts," says the New York World. Both land and sea are to be brought under the control of this czar of the industrial world. Railroads and steamship lines are to be federated into one gigantic system of transportation that will girdle the globe. Six steamship lines, with 105 large ships, are at the present time organized into the Atlantic steamship trust. Ten other lines will make a "harmonious working agreement" with Mr. Morgan's steamship trust, so that more than 800 vessels will be consolidated.

This is almost the entire number of large passenger steamships plying regularly between America and Europe. Add to this steamship trust the American railroad trust, practically completed by Mr. Morgan, and arrange a "harmonious working agreement" with the steamship lines that connect San Francisco with Asia, Australia and the Philippines, and the international transportation trust becomes a fact.

These various railroad and steamship companies may not be actually fused into one corporation. Mr. Morgan has a better plan than that. The latest thing in trusts is the "community of interests" idea which he has originated.

The aim of the new transportation trust is to capture the carrying trade of the globe. By means of the new Nicaragua canal and the Philippines transportation trust will be able to send its ships to every port in Asia. It is also planning to build a railroad system in China. A recent dispatch from Hongkong announces that a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan has applied to the Chinese government for permission to build a railway from Peking to Chingkiang.

If the new Transiberian railroad, now being built by American engineers with American material, can be induced by Mr. Morgan to make a "harmonious working agreement" with his international transportation trust, then Mr. Morgan will absolutely belt the world with his railroads and steamships. His railway trains will cross two continents and his steamships will cross two oceans. He will become the grand stage driver and ferryman of the world.

The steamship lines recently brought together by Mr. Morgan are the American line with 8 ships, the Red Star with 13 ships, the White Star with 23 ships, the Dominion with 6 ships, the Leyland with 34 ships and the Atlantic Transport with 21 ships. These six lines will form what will be known as the International Navigation company, with its headquarters in New York city.

The stock issued will represent a value of $170,000,000. For his work in organizing the new trust Mr. Morgan has received the royal fee of $12,500,000, payable in the stock of the International Navigation company.

But these six companies will only be the hub of the great wheel that is to roll around the globe. An agreement is to be arranged, and may be already concluded, with the Cunard line, the (Wilson and Furness-Leyland line, the Holland-America, Hamburg-American, North German Lloyd, Allan, South American, Anchor and the Pacific and French lines. Consequently the total value of the steamship combination will be over $450,000,000.

The originator of the steamship trust idea was Clement A. Griscom, president of the American and Red Star lines. He was obliged to ask the assistance of Mr. Morgan, the veteran consolidator of the world. At once Mr. Morgan saw the immense possibilities in the scheme, sailed for London and recently completed all arrangements which now give to America the practical control of the merchant marine of the seas.

"American interests will dominate the proposed amalgamation," said George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co. "The plan will be of benefit not only to exporters and importers, but also to the great railroad interests of the country. Mr. Morgan will act as syndicate manager in the combination, just as he brought together the conflicting interests in the United States Steel corporation. All the cash necessary for the deal has been subscribed.

"Each line will be conducted under separate management and will have separate offices, as heretofore, but all will be united under one control. "As some of the foreign ships are subsidized by their governments they will sail under their own flags. If the ship subsidy bill should be passed in this country, then we might be able to complete our organization with American ships. This move simply means the extension by the great railroads of their terminals across the Atlantic."

The recent merging of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific completed the gigantic railway combination that has been under way for years. Of the 100,000 miles of railroad in the United States 108,464 miles are now controlled by seven men—Morgan, Cassatt, Harriman, Hill, Gould, Belmont and Vanderbilt. On the new "community of interest" plan invented by Mr. Morgan the various groups of railroads have made a "harmonious working agreement" by which they act as practically one corporation. In fact, they are absolutely a trust in every sense except the legal one.

The railway mileage controlled by the various groups is as follows:

	Mileage.
Harriman	20,245
Vanderbilt	19,517
Morgan	19,072
Cassatt	18,220
Gould	16,674
Hill	10,373
Belmont	4,962
Total	108,464

The lines that are under the control of these seven men are the main thoroughfares of the country. They connect with the three ports of the west—San Francisco, Portland and Seattle. They run through the great wheat states of the middle west, through the coal, steel and cotton districts of the east and south and reach every important terminal on the northern lakes and Atlantic seaboard. Today this committee of seven American citizens, more powerful than any congress or parliament in the world, is reaching for the supremacy of both sea and land.

Sixteen steamship lines and forty-four railroad systems! On land a mileage of 108,500 and on sea a tonnage of 1,200,000! Three hundred of the largest steamships in the world and 30,000 of the best equipped passenger and freight trains! Such is the outfit of the new worldwide transportation trust controlled by seven men and practically operated by one—J. Pierpont Morgan.

The railway mileage controlled by this trust is greater than the combined mileage of Great Britain, Russia, Germany, Spain, Holland and Belgium, and the 300 vessels which will sail under its orders cannot be duplicated from the merchant marine of every ocean.

It will soon be impossible for "tramp" steamers to deliver freight, at any American port without being at the mercy of the new trust. The three new lines now being built in New York city between Twenty-third and Little Twelfth streets and which will cost $8,000,000 have been asked for by Clement A. Griscom, the head of the new steamship trust.

It was recently stated that a thousand "tramp" steamships were laid up in various ports of the United States and Great Britain by reason of the dearth of freight. Shippers predict that "the tramp steamship must go" now that the ship trust has been organized and federated.

The total capital stock of the railroads of America is over $6,000,000,000. Consequently it is not an exaggeration to say that Mr. Morgan's transportation trust of railroads and steamships has a total financial strength of $4,500,000,000, making it the richest and most powerful industrial combination that the world has ever known.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S GIFT.

How He Decided to Present United States With a Statue.

Emperor William's purpose of giving a statue of Emperor Frederick the Great to the United States was seemingly quite suddenly formed, says a Berlin dispatch to the New York Journal.

A few evenings ago his majesty was holding an informal reception in the court box of the new theater at Wiesbaden between the acts of the opera, "The Merry Wives of Windsor," when he turned to Professor Uphues, the sculptor, and said:

"Uphues, I want you to make another statue of Frederick the Great."

To this the professor replied:

"I shall be delighted, your majesty." This was the first the sculptor had heard of the project, and it was apparently the first that any one had heard of the emperor's intention. His majesty then told Professor Uphues that the statue was for presentation to the people of the United States, and his cablegram to President Roosevelt on the subject was written and sent the next day.

To Preserve Hen Fruit.

M. Louis Parisot, an eminent French chemist, has discovered a liquid which he claims to be capable of preserving the freshness of eggs for a period of twelve years, says the London Mail. About a year ago he placed a large number of these delicacies in the liquid, getting a magistrate to witness his act and seal the tank with his official seal. A few days ago the tank was opened in the presence of his worship, the eggs being found to be in excellent condition. Four eggs were selected haphazard out of the tank and on being boiled were eaten, the magistrate pronouncing them to be excellent and possessing a delicious flavor. Another triumph for the inventor happened the other day, some eggs which had been in the liquid for four months being successfully hatched, eight out of the twelve placed under the hen proving fertile. M. Parisot states that he can preserve eggs with his preparation at a cost of 15 cents per thousand.

Cost of Martiniere Horror to Papers.

The public has no conception at all what the Martiniere disaster is costing the newspapers, says the New York Herald. The average man pays little attention to the "special cable" line and reads the stirring news without a thought as to the cost of it. When it is known that cable messages from Fort-de-France cost $2.15 a word and urgent messages $6.45 for every word, some conception can be had of the cost of covering this calamity. But that is not all. There are the tugs, the special men and the photographers. All this mounts into the thousands, but after all the big papers in New York feel that it is worth it, and no expense has been spared to get this immense story.

IN THE FIELD OF SPORT.

Newark Team is to be Organized and Denison's Splendid Twirler May be Secured—O. S. U. Game at Greenville—Local and General Sporting News.

The suggestion which appeared in the sporting columns of the Advocate, urging that Newark should have some good base ball this season, has borne early fruit, and before many days the first game on the new diamond will be played.

The new grounds will be in East Newark, just west of the Heisey glass works, and this morning a force of men was put to work on the diamond, which will be immediately put in shape.

To Louis Swinehart, the well known B. & O. conductor, is due the great share of the credit for arranging to furnish base ball lovers, a good article of the great national pastime during the summer months. Associated with him are several men who are prominent in business circles, so that the venture is almost assured success.

As to the makeup of the team, nothing definite is known as yet, but it will be announced in due season. It is understood that two games for Decoration Day have about been arranged for, but it is not yet ready to announce.

It is said that negotiations are pending to sign Philpot, Denison's great slab artist, who will be a tower of strength to any team.

The Newark club will play Saturday afternoons.

For information and news concerning Newark's club, watch the sporting column of the Advocate, as well as for all live, up-to-date sporting news.

THE REDS' POOR PLAY.

It did seem that Cincinnati had struck a winning streak, after the New York series, and as a matter of fact the Reds did take a decided brace in their work immediately following the release of Bay and Stummel. The falling of the ax seemed to have stirred them up, but again they have fallen in the losing rut. If a team strikes a losing streak on account of hard luck, or exceptional play of opponents, there is no kick coming, but to throw away games by amateurish holding errors is something the fans will not stand for, and as a result the attendance at the Cincinnati park has dwindled to almost nothing. Thursday with Bill Phillips in the box, the game was thrown away by errors of the rank kind. If the ax should fall on the necks of two or three more of the "dead ones" on the Cincinnati pay roll, the team's playing would be benefitted.

A CLOSE GAME.

Columbus won a close game from St. Paul Thursday, by a score of 1 to 0. Each team made four hits and fielded perfectly.

BROKE HIS LEG.

George Van Haltren, the veteran outfielder of the New York club while stealing second base in the sixth inning of the Pittsburgh-New York game, Thursday, slipped and broke his leg at the ankle. Van will hardly play again this season. The game was won by the champions, Deacon Phillips only allowing two scratch singles.

POOR PATRONAGE.

The following walk comes from the Philadelphia Record, and it is justifiable:

The Athletics (The Philadelphia American team) are not getting the patronage they deserve. There never was a team which fought harder when behind than the Athletics. They are also making a game fight, with odds against them, for the pennant."

WALSH SELLS TO HART.

John R. Walsh, equal owner with A. G. Spalding of 640 shares of stock in the Chicago ball club of the National League, has sold out his interests to James A. Hart, president of the club. There are 100 shares of stock in this club, par value $100.

CRIMSON CREW SLUMPS.

Cambridge, Mass., May 23.—Harvard's crew has taken a bad slump Wednesday, under perfect weather conditions, the second time row of the year was held, and, in spite of the two weeks which have elapsed since the first test, the Varsity boat made poorer time than it did when it went over the same course before. As a result of the race radical changes were made in the make-up of the first crew, the most important of which was the taking of Brownell from stroke and putting him in the second boat.

THE METEOR'S FIRST RACE.

The first race in which the Meteor will take part will be the race across the channel, from Dover to Helgoland. The Clara, the Gleniffer and the new Fifo schooner will be entered against her. The Fifo boat is the hope of the British yachtsmen, but they fear the Meteor will have in the channel all the wind necessary, in their opinion, to drive her, and that she may become the winner. The Dover-Helgoland race is down for June 21.

CUBA AND ITS FUTURE

Palma to Model His Country on the United States.

SANITATION TO BE CONTINUED.

New President Knows American History and Admires Washington and Lincoln—Says "Florida Keys Opened Door to Cuban Liberty" and Wants Islanders to Be Interested in Spain.

"I shall endeavor to have Cuba follow in the footsteps of the United States," said President Tomas Palma the other day in a long conference with Governor Jennings of Florida and Colonel W. J. Bryan, says the Havana correspondent of the New York World. "I am familiar with American history and a great admirer of Washington and Lincoln. One made the Union; the other preserved it. Both dignified it by gaining the respect of other nations."

"I feel grateful to the people of the United States, to whose sentiments regarding Cuba the house and senate promptly responded. President McKinley's delay and deliberation were due to his great individual responsibility. Congress had a collective responsibility."

"I have come to Cuba reluctantly, preferring my home at Central Valley, N. Y., and a quiet life with my family rather than public life. But I have come because I felt it to be my duty."

"I want Cubans and Spaniards to turn their backs on the past and unadvisedly face the future, jointly combating difficulties and problems."

"I want opposition for the betterment of the government, but not personal or prejudicial opposition. I should be ready and willing to hear criticism. I think liberty of the press a great national benefactor in pointing out the errors and improving the morals of the government."

President Palma spoke kindly of the clemency of the United States courts and judges that tried the filibusters and particularly thanked the commonwealth of Florida for great help, saying:

"The history of Cuba's success was written on the Florida sands, and the Florida keys opened the door to Cuban liberty. Key West is a ward of Havana, being nearer to Cuba in point of time than it is to the mainland of Florida."

"Sanitation and education will continue as they have been improved by the military government. Last year all South America was exceptionally free from yellow fever. There may be an increase this year, but the Cuban government will employ the utmost vigilance to maintain health and uninterrupted commercial relations. I believe in the theory of the transmission of the fever by mosquitoes, but I agree with Governor Jennings in the necessity of keeping this city clean."

Governor Jennings interrupted to say that it would be impossible to maintain open commerce with Florida ports unless the sanitation in Havana was good. President Palma assured him that there would be no cause for fear, the interests being mutual.

President Palma says he shall be glad to show his respect for the government of Spain and thinks the Cubans should take an interest in the "mother country."

Separate the Hens.

Young birds as well as the old hens often contract diseases which they would escape were they kept in a proper yard or allowed sometimes on a grass plot away from the barnyard; besides, they will be less liable to become overfat. In such a yard there should be two divisions, one for the laying and sitting hens and one for the hens with the chickens. Remove the hens and young ones into this latter yard as soon as they are hatched out. The hens should be confined in coops, so made as to protect them and their broods from the rain. The hens with chickens should be provided with an open shed in addition to these coops, facing the south, in which they might be placed during long continued rains. Fresh water should be supplied in shallow troughs twice a day to the inmates of both apartments of the yard, and there should be in each yard a small heap of ashes as a preventive of vermin. As the season for hatching arrives too much preparation cannot be made.—Horse and Fireside.

GALLANT ROCHAMBEAU.

Description of Statue in Memory of His Services.

HERO OF MANY BATTLEFIELDS.

Career of the Celebrated French Soldier Who Enabled the Revolutionary Forces to Turn the Tide in Our War of Independence—How He Trapped Lord Cornwallis.

The Rochambeau statue has its place in Lafayette square in the national capital, the place of all others most fitting for it, says a special dispatch from Washington to the Chicago Record-Herald. It flanks the bronze effigy of the young Marquis de Lafayette, who owned the Comte de Rochambeau as his "father in war." The statue is of heroic size. It represents the marshal at the siege of Yorktown ordering the French wing of the besieging army to attack the works of the English general, Lord Cornwallis, on the morning of Oct. 10, 1781.

Against the pedestal rises a splendid female figure of France holding aloft two flagstaves with the left hand—the flags of France and America—and grasping a threatening sword with the right. The war eagle with extended wings is at her feet, so typifying the defensive alliance, the only one ever consecrated by a treaty which has been signed on behalf of the United States.

The statue is a replica of one that stands in the town of Vendome, close to the ancestral chateau of the Rochambeau family. Fernand Hamar, the sculptor, gave to its execution long study and much love, and when it was unveiled June 4, 1900, he received the highest praise for his skill and his artistic conception.

Few months had passed before it occurred to M. Jules Bouffé, chancellor of the French embassy at Washington, that a duplicate of the statue should be erected in the United States. Then General Horace Porter, American ambassador at Paris, wrote to Chairman Cannon of the house committee on appropriations recommending the project and expressing his appreciation of the high artistic worth of the monument.

It was found that a replica could be purchased for $7,500, and this amount was appropriated March 3, 1901, as an amendment to the sundry civil bill. On March 7 a joint resolution set aside $10,000 as a fund for entertaining the representatives of the French government, and invited the families of Rochambeau and Lafayette to attend the unveiling ceremonies. Within the month an additional sum of the same amount has been authorized.

Marshal de Rochambeau was a seasoned warrior of fifty-five when he brought 6,000 French troops to America in 1780. He held the high grade of lieutenant general in the French army and many and great were the debts his king and his people owed him for his services in battle. He was given his early education for the priesthood, but when he was seventeen years old, his elder brother died, and he was summoned from the college halls to prepare for the active life that would be his as his father's successor.

The war of the Austrian succession was being fought, and young Rochambeau was soon in the field as a cornet in St. Simon's cavalry regiment. He did dashing work in many campaigns, and finally at Namur, in the Low Countries, came his great opportunity. He took it into his head to climb a height considered impregnable, and there he found two sentinels lazily smoking in the sun. Not disturbing them, he slipped away and was soon back at the head of a strong force. He took the height, and with it the battle was won. For this he was made a colonel at the age of twenty-two.

From this his story runs on with ever increasing honor. Name the battles of Europe in which the French army took part during the middle of the eighteenth century, and you name the scenes of Rochambeau's exploits. In the expedition against the island of Minorca he became brigadier general. At Crevelt he held the whole Austrian army at bay for hours. At Minden his own part was glorious, despite his country's defeat.

When Louis XV. determined to send money and men to help the American colonies, he chose Rochambeau for the leadership. The army of 6,000 men disembarked at Newport, while the supporting army under Admiral de Ternay occupied the bay. There perforce he had to remain with his command, playing his part in the game of chess to which the war had reduced itself. Washington he first met in September of 1780 at Hartford. It was decided that the two armies should join forces, Washington's troops being then along the highlands of the Hudson.

It was not till June, 1781, after Rochambeau's son had come from France with reinforcements, that the armies united. After reconnaissance it was decided that General Clinton and the British at New York were still too strong to attack. Then it was that the advance on Cornwallis was determined. Skillfully deceiving General Clinton, the united armies were soon on the route for Virginia. They closed in on the British general, fought him gallantly at the outposts and trapped him so completely that he surrendered, and the war of the Revolution was won.

Rochambeau was loaded with honors by the Continental congress, and he did not return to France till the next spring. He rose to be marshal of France, survived the revolution, though suffering imprisonment and narrowly escaping execution, and died in 1807 at the age of eighty-two.
